Website: www.carshaltonlavender.org

A Unique Lavender Experience

Set in a stunning three-acre field at the Stanley Road Allotment site (accessible via Balfour Road, off Stanley Park Road), the harvest weekend is a must-visit for flower lovers, families, and photographers alike.

Visitors can pick their own fragrant lavender, browse a variety of stalls, and enjoy delicious refreshments.

Family-Friendly Activities & Shopping

Alongside the lavender picking, guests can explore an array of stalls selling handcrafted lavender products, local crafts, and plants.

Families with young children can participate in bug-hunting, face painting, and the Big Butterfly Count - a fantastic way to engage with nature.

Discover Carshalton Heritage Lavender Products

This weekend is the primary opportunity to purchase Carshalton Heritage Lavender products, which feature our locally distilled essential oil. We do not operate a shop, so we only sell directly or through a small number of local trusted retailers.. If you can't make the harvest, you can find a list of our stockists on our website or visit us at Wallington Farmers' Market 2nd Saturday of the month.

August Lavender Distillations

Since 2009, Carshalton Lavender has distilled its lavender oil, continuing a time-honoured tradition in the area.

Check our Facebook page in August to see which Saturdays we will be distilling (weather permitting) and watch the process in action.

A Rich History of Lavender Cultivation

Carshalton, Wallington, Mitcham, Waddon, and Sutton were once home to vast blue fields of lavender in the early 1900s. Carshalton Lavender is dedicated to preserving this heritage by cultivating plants grown from original local cuttings, making our field a truly unique piece of history.

As a volunteer-run project, all proceeds from the event go towards maintaining and preserving the field for future generations.

New volunteers are always welcome - visit our website for details
